AUTHOR'S NOTE

The idea for Synapses of Eternity was born from a simple yet terrifying question: Where does the machine end and the human begin?

We live in a world that is rapidly digitizing. We store our memories on servers, transmit our emotions through signals, and our daily lives depend on algorithms we often don't understand. But what happens when that same code tries to replace the most sacred thing we have — our consciousness and our capacity to love?

Andru and Ana are not merely characters in a technological thriller. They are a mirror of our own struggle to remain human beings in an era of absolute control. Writing about the cold corridors of a London clinic and the hot sand of Giza, I wanted to explore the invisible thread connecting the ancient wisdom of the pyramids with modern-day processors.

This book is dedicated to all those who believe that love is not merely a chemical reaction or a string of zeros and ones. It is a reminder that freedom often comes at a high price, but that a single day spent in truth is worth more than an eternity in a golden cage of delusion.

Enter the world of Aethelgard carefully. For where synapses join with eternity, the line between savior and jailer is as thin as a strand of hair.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

MARIJA JELIĆ is a versatile author whose creative work rests on the balance between body and spirit. A physical education professor and cosmetologist by profession, Marija explores the harmony of physical strength and inner aesthetics through her work, which deeply reflects in her literature.

Fascinated by ancient civilizations and their yet-undiscovered secrets, she devotes her free time to painting and writing, merging visual art with narrative mystery. Her debut novel, Synapses of Eternity, is the fruit of a longstanding interest in the boundaries of human nature and futuristic visions of society.

Marija lives and creates in Belgrade, where as a happily married mother of three she finds daily inspiration in the strength of family and the enduring values of love. For her, writing is a way to bridge the gap between what we were and what technology threatens we may become.
